Established in 1989, Jupiter Aqua Lines Ltd., popularly known as 'JAL' has been ornamenting the best of bathrooms by applying the Principles of Aquadynamics - the fusion of good engineering with good designs. It also means striking a right balance between 'Bhogadyam', 'Sukha Darsham' and 'Ramyam' the three principles of 'Vaastu Shastra'. The result being a perfect product in terms of performance, aesthetics and user satisfaction.

Bringing forth international quality products, under the brand names of JAL & JALANGI, we have always made sure that whatever is offered to the customers is nothing but the best.

At JAL, quality is the driving force behind the rapid growth of the organization. Each of our fittings goes through several quality tests at each stage of production. Only those products that clear the stringent quality control checks, are delivered to the customers. We also maintain world class packaging standards. Human resource is another key component of the strength of the organization. The unflinching devotion and dedication of a committed team of employees has ensured many admirable achievements for the company.

The fine craftsmanship and attention to detail make a unique statement about the care and extra time we dedicate to every fixture. The meticulous curves, unique angles and mirror-like polished surface of JAL Bathfittings and Bathwares are unmatched. JAL faucets have the form and functionality that exudes the quality and integrity of the materials used. The complete spectrum of accessories that complement each faucet provide a range of products that interior designers, architects and developers can rely on.

Together with JAL you shall discover the art of creating beautiful bathrooms. We go beyond making customers, as we build relationships of understanding. Our specially trained customer care executives shall always be at your call to help meet your needs from JAL.

So, come and explore the world of ideas and artistry where you will experience unsurpassed performance and irresistible designs. Don't hope for perfection, expect it.

The element water has occupied, fascinated and inspired the people at JAL. And just as water has given shape to life, JAL has played a large part in the variety of fittings, with which we can use water today in such a stunning, natural and safe way. The designs, material, finishing and the technology of our fittings is of world class standards. We endeavour to take varied beautiful shapes and apply these to our products in the spirit of innovation. Imaginatively crafted, our faucets display unsurpassed performance and irresistible designs.

Tatva called Water

The most mysterious of all essential elements, water affects our body, mind and soul in amazing ways. In its non-physical form, water element is responsible for our emotions and feelings. Water as an element represents the contemplative moments in people. It makes us search for our inner self. Since water is constantly changing, it inspires us to move, change and pave way for the unknown. It gives birth to ideas and creativity.

The Hindu philosophy tells us that our entire world is made up of five essential elements. Panchabhutas, namely earth, fire, water, air, and ether. Vedas tell us, 'as in the macrocosm, so in the microcosm'. This effectively means that we, too, are made up of these five elements. Out of these five elements, earth and ether are very closely interlinked. In fact, these two are considered to be vibrating at the same frequency; the only difference is that while earth is a gross element, ether is its subtle form. Because of this equation between (earth, water, fire, and air) as the primary building blocks of life.

Ancient Hindus believed that all these four elements originated from ether, so ether is present in all the four elements, subtly permeating the entire creation. All the essential elements, including water, are alive and it is their purpose to weave their vitality in and around all that is earth and heaven.

Our physical bodies are primarily made up of the earth element. But just as on physical earth, 70-75% of our body mass consists of water. Water is apparently present in the form of body fluids, such as blood, plasma, spermatic fluid, urine, saliva etc, but besides these all the organs, bones, tissues, and cells of body contain water in various proportions.

Ever since life was introduced on our beautiful Planet, water has played a very significant role. In fact, life first originated in water. Even today, water is essential for life forms to survive. It carries the life force to enrich our life, and oxygen and other necessary elements with which to sustain life under water. No wonder, we revere water in all its forms!

Sense Appeal

A body of water-a lake, river, stream or the sea-has a quality that touches your finer sensibilities, your deeper self. That feeling is inescapable whenever you are close to water. However, beyond the domain of the mind and feelings, water also produces myriad other sensations...when breakers play at your ankles on a sanguine seashore, when you gasp for air under an icy falls, when the first showers dance on your expectant face, when you listen to your heart and dance in the rain.

Water, nectar of Gods, is indeed manna from heaven. Little wonder rain has a lyrical quality when it meets terra firma. Whether on misty high ranges or lush paddy fields, on swinging palms or limpid ponds, rain unfolds scenes that seem cast in an ethereal mould. The show begins from the time grey pregnant clouds sweep across the skies covering the landscape in a veil of anticipation. Sometimes rain arrives without much ado, in a wash of misty drizzle; at others, in a hurry, lashing with gusto. Through the haze, greenery takes on a different hue and all around foliage is renewed, seemingly rejoicing at the drenching. Soon, earth takes on a green coat. And once the soil is soaked, the overflow runs in to the channels and streams where the rolling water tumbles in an effusive surge through hills and dales, and glens and valleys, to join rivers that meander to the sea. And as the sun plays on the waters, moist clouds rise once again, scudding ashore in the monsoons to precipitate freshly in copious of rainfall.

Water also holds you in raputres in so many other ways, and in many other forms...from dewdrops to wintry mist to snowfall. Dew may be mere condensation, but it lends a whole new dimension to everyday scenes, as though not just roses and grass and foliage but, under a mantle of fog, nature itself takes a break, wrapped in a coasy blanket. Indeed, what would the world be without mist and dewdrops?

SAVE WATER. SAVE LIFE

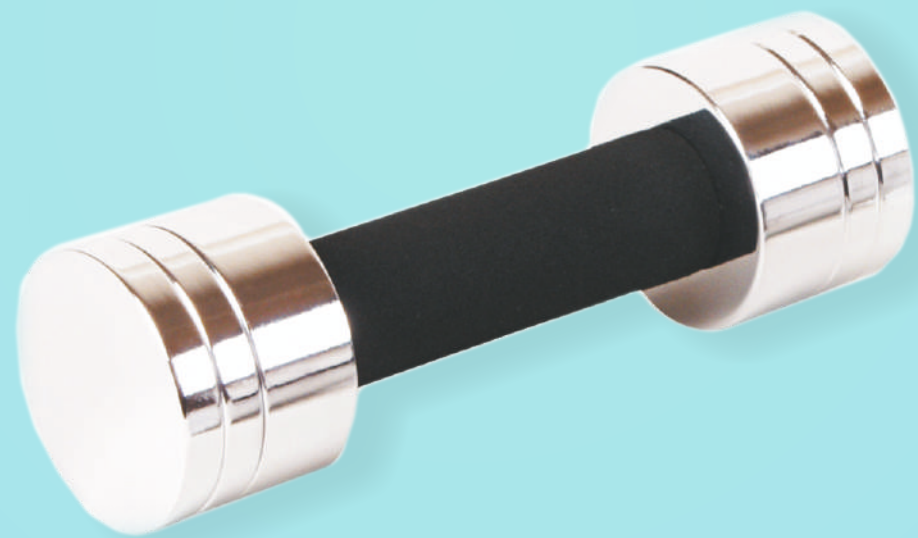

Preserving the FUTURE

The United Nation predicts that by 2025, two third of the population will experience water shortage, with severe lack of water affecting the lives and livelihoods of 1.8 billion of us. According to the UN World Water Assessment Programme, by 2050, seven billion people in 60 countries may have to cope with water scarcity. So, effective management of this precious resource now might just rescue us from hydrological anarchy later.

Water is the lifeline of human lives and the world needs to wake up to the ground reality that one day this nature's gift may dry up from this planet unless we take good care to nurture and replenish its sources. Water consumption of the world is doubling every 20 years, which is more than twice the rate of increase of our population. The United Nation predicts that by 2025, two third of the population will experience water shortage, with severe lack of water affecting the livelihoods of 1.8 billion of us. According to the UN World Water Assessment Programme, by 2050, seven billion people in 60 countries may have to cope with water scarcity.

Global warming is the other important concern, which will affect the availability of water on the earth. In water-stressed areas, people and ecosystems are particularly vulnerable to more variable and decreasing precipitation due to climate change. In most countries, except for a few industrialized nations, water use has increased over recent decades, due to population and economic growth, changes in lifestyle and intensive agricultural practices. It is not wonder then that water is being increasingly referred to as 'blue gold'. Furthermore, even under the conservative emissions scenarios and moderate storylines of the predictions of the IPCC, in the future, it is highly likely there will be less precipitation in the majore agricultural regions of the world. Wiser water use will be necessary to ensure increased food production and better living standards for the world's growing enmeshed population.

Installation

JAL Bath fittings and Bathwares are your prized possessions. To get the best out of these, please follow the simple guidelines given below, during the plumbing work:

- Keep the number of bends in the pipelines to the minimum as the bends in the pipeline account for loss of water pressure.
- To prevent air locking, all water supply lines should have vent pipes.
- The pipelines should travel straight and vertical as far as possible.
- Flush Valves and Flush Cocks need to be directly connected to overhead tanks through 1", 1¼" or ½" water supply lines, as required, for effective flushing. It is, therefore, most important to inform your plumber about your choice of flushing system for positioning the water supply lines correctly.
- It is preferable to use ¾" pipe for water supply to other faucets.
- It is advisable to check the concealed fittings for proper functioning before plastering and tiling.
- Please ensure that the concealed fittings are installed with the 'Arrow' mark in line with the direction of flow of water.
- The water outlet in the overhead tank should be kept at least 4" above the base level of the tank to prevent blockage due to entry of any foreign particles and other deposits.
- Geysers should be installed close to the point of usage to reduce heat loss.
- For hot & cold water mixers, it is advisable to supply the cold water also from the overhead tank for proper mixing and to prevent reverse flow.
- During installation, plumbing and other masonry work, the faucets should be kept covered with cloth or polythene to prevent any damage.
- The foam flow aerators need periodic cleaning to remove scale deposits and other particles.
- Do not use any strong detergents or acids for cleaning of faucets. Normal regular cleaning with a soft cloth, using solution of mild soap with water, shall eliminate chances of scale deposits and keep the faucets ever shining. We recommend usage of "Jal Care".
- To keep the protective layer of coat intact on the gold plated and other special coated parts, prevent any damage by sharp objects.
- Faucets carry a warranty of  All Plastic, Acrylic, ABS, Electrical and Electronic components carry a warranty of 1 year.
- Kitchen Sinks carry a  against cracks.
- Please purchase JAL products from company's authorized stockists only to enjoy the benefits of warranty and any after sales service, if required.
- For any assistance, please contact the nearest JAL stockist or the Marketing Co-ordinator.

- The adornments shown are not part of standard bath fittings.
- The designs are subject to change without prior notice.
- Please do specify the choice of surface finish while placing an order.
